Project Description

The government of Artsakh has launched a series of reforms in the education system, including the Whole Day School program. The program plans to involve all communities in Artsakh within two years. The pilot program will be carried out in 20 border villages starting from September, 2021. The costs of model rooms (1-3), upgrading, furnishing, renovating of the kitchen for hot food, and purchasing equipment will be covered by charitable and educational organizations. All teachers, specialists and coordinating deputy directors involved in the program will undergo group training in advance within the framework of the "Organization of Participatory Education and Whole Day School Program." The new staff of Whole Day School program will be trained through the financial means of the Ministry of Education, Science and Culture of Artsakh and other sources. The program enjoys the full support of the Artsakh Ministry of Education, Science and Culture.

The program aims to provide children with extracurricular activities, helping them to prepare homework, teaching new skills, watching films and giving parents the opportunity to work. The program will help stimulate the economy and improve the knowledge of students.

Through the Fund's financial means the whole day program is successfully organized in 10 schools. In total, some 1400 students benefit from the project. The project has provided 97 specialists with a job.
